Idaho State Journal, Tuesday, March 22, 2011 -- Staff report

HARMS MEMORIAL HOSPITAL CHANGING NAME

In honor of its 50th anniversary, Harms Memorial Hospital District will officially change its name back to the Power County Hospital District.

Administrative Assistant Jacklyn Taylor said hospital officials decided to revert back to the original name to celebrate the anniversary and give the hospital a new look as it moves into the future.

“It better represents the district itself and who we serve,” she said.

The hospital changed its name in the 1980s to honor Frank Harms, a doctor who worked for the hospital for nearly 40 years and delivered about 3,000 babies in that time.

Taylor said hospital officials will likely find another way to honor Harms in the future.

The name change will officially take effect on April 1. Taylor said officials are also changing the website to www.pchd.net.
