SLMV names interim CEO

Twin Falls, Idaho - St. Luke's Magic Valley Hospital announced an interim CEO after Mark Schwartz announced his resignation earlier this month.

Mike Reno who is currently the principal health care advisor for RWD Technologies, which is the consulting firm helping the hospital with its lean transformation, agreed to serve as interim CEO.

He'll begin his new position on Monday, May 3rd while still being employed by RWD.

Doctor David Pate, who's the president and C-E-O of St. Luke's Health System, says the hospital will conduct a national search for a new CEO.

Pate says that Reno's insight and expertise with facilities will help them a great deal as the hospital moves into the new location.

Once a permanent CEO is selected, Reno will resume his consulting duties through RWD.
