Saint Al's plans to open 'neighborhood hospital'

Saint Alphonsus Health System is proposing a small "neighborhood hospital" on the empty lot south of the Whole Foods grocery store between Front and Myrtle streets in the Central Addition neighborhood of Downtown Boise.

The hospital, above, would include a two-story, 18,215-square-foot building, with associated parking, service and landscape areas, according to documents filed Tuesday with the city of Boise. The hospital would include eight exam treatment rooms, an imaging department containing X-ray and CT services, and eight inpatient beds.

This would be Saint Al's third neighborhood hospital. The first, located in Nampa, is scheduled to open in late September. The second, in Eagle, should be ready next year, according to a statement Saint Al's released in May.
